

EPISODE 34

The Hardest Story in the Bible (for me)

Fertility Cult

Child Sacrifice

Conquest

Standing Stones

RECOMMENDATIONS

You made it to episode 34!

How do these images change what you think about the conquest of Joshua? Do you struggle with this story the same way Marty does? Is the reconsideration of the archaeological evidence helpful?

Don't race ahead to Session 3 (or 4).

A big part of our goal is to understand the full, unified narrative of the Bible. Session 2 is crucial to understanding so many of the words of Jesus (and it isn't even that much). Keep moving forward—binge to the end of Session 5. Then dive deep or jump around.

Take someone on the journey with you.

Use the Groups page on our website to find people, or recruit a friend. Engage the Text. Wrestle honestly. Work through Session 2, but don't let it be a slog. Feel free to combine multiple episodes as your group sits in the tension of the Prophets.

Find the help you need.

We have all kinds of resources. Explore the website. Check the show notes. If all else fails, use the Contact page to get in touch with us.

“I dance for the things I don't know today. I'm going to discover something amazing. It's not today—but I dance because someday, maybe, I will.”

MEET YOUR HOSTS

Josh
Bossé

Josh Bossé (1992–2025) was our virtual BEMA Campus Minister with Impact Campus Ministries. He passed away on November 28, 2025. He is survived by his wife, Sophia, and their son, Ronen.

Brent
Billings

Brent Billings began his career in production in 2003, which ultimately led to Moscow, Idaho, in 2012. He started BEMA classes in 2013, and traveled to Israel and Turkey with Marty in 2016. Upon returning, they launched the podcast. Brent joined Impact Campus Ministries full-time in 2020. He and his wife, Maggi, have two sons, Darius and Torin, and one German Shepherd, Maple.

Marty
Solomon

Marty Solomon grew up in the Reformed tradition before getting his B.A. in Christian Ministries from Boise Bible College. In 2008 he studied in Israel with Ray Vander Laan and was challenged to grapple with his own Jewish heritage. He developed BEMA Discipleship as a way to share his experience with others. He and his wife, Becky, live in Cincinnati with their two kids, Abigail and Ezekiel.

Reed
Dent

Reed Dent grew up in Kansas City and graduated from Truman State University, where he now serves as the director of Campus Christian Fellowship. He and his wife, LeAnn, have three boys. He enjoys listening to records and watching the Chiefs, and he reads aloud to anyone who will listen.

Elle
Grover Fricks

Elle Grover Fricks has a Master of Arts in the Bible & the Ancient Near East from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, undergraduate degrees in psychology and music from Washington State University, and spent four years in mental health as a state-certified behavioral therapist. She is the teaching pastor of Refuge Church in Pullman, WA, and lives on the Palouse with her husband and three kids.